BUY! SELL! RENT!

We started thinking about real estate last week when Vanilla Ice launched a show called “The Vanilla Ice Project” on the DIY Network in which he attempts to fix up and turn a profit on a mansion. (Seriously. We couldn’t possibly make this stuff up.) And then we saw real estate everywhere. Here are a few of our favorite figures in the news this week.

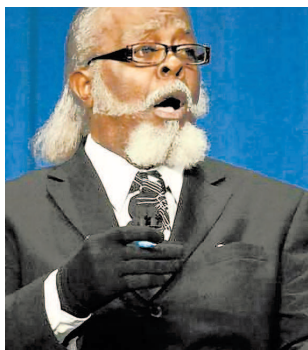

Playboy

Talk about a business meeting conversation starter for the next renter of the 15th and 16th floor at 680 N. Lake Shore Drive. The current occupant, Playboy Enterprises, is looking to sublease its headquarters space there, the Tribune reported this week. The space simply “is too big for us,” company spokeswoman Martha Lindeman said. Hmm, and we always thought the nudie mag liked ‘em big.

Kyle Korver

Bulls fans should hope Kyle Korver can average as many points per game as bedrooms in his new home. The new guard/forward paid $1.38 million for a 16-room mansion in Glencoe that once was listed for $2.95 million, the Tribune reported this week. Built in 2008, Korver’s six-bedroom house has five baths, a spa, a home theater and a walkout basement. How about a mantel for some championship hardware? PHIL VELASQUEZ/TRIBUNE

Jimmy McMillan

Who’s Jimmy McMillan, you ask? He’s a candidate for governor of New York who is running as a member of a party called The Rent Is Too Damn High. The only problem: The New York Times reported this week that McMillan hasn’t paid rent on his apartment in at least 10 years due to an agreement with his landlord. OK, we recognize his slogan isn’t literally about paying rent, but still ... really? GETTY IMAGES PHOTO

Roadkill—it’s what’s for dinner

Go ahead—eat that deer you just ran over with your SUV.

But first, the Illinois Department of Natural Resources requires that you now give it a call before converting that woodland creature into steaks or jerky. A DNR spokeswoman says the new policy is intended to help officials keep better track of “roadkill deer.”

Until this year, motorists planning to turn lemons (front-end damage to their vehicle) into lemonade (venison stew) only had to notify the state if they took the deer to a taxidermist.

Deer have become so populous in some areas that officials this year approved hiring sharpshooters to thin their forest preserve herds. Birth-control darts also were considered. TRIBUNE

Pumpkin fever!

Local restaurants go gaga for orange food, but how does it taste?

By Lisa Balde

Pumpkins are huge. And not just for carving. Through fall, the big orange squash makes cameos on menus all over town, from bakeries and restaurants to your morning cuppa caffeine at the corner cafe. It made us wonder: Is it worth the hype? Do pumpkins actually taste good beyond pumpkin pie?

"They taste awesome and, on top of that, they're healthy for you," said Lyle Allen, executive director of Green City Market, home to thousands of off-the-vine pumpkins for sale between September and early November. "It's versatile and it can be an ingredient in so many different things. ... You can use it in hundreds of dishes now."

Pumpkins' popularity has grown over the years, especially among chefs, Allen said, thanks to the availability of fresh pumpkins at markets. Plus it's a relatively easy food to work with, aiding new savory and sweet concoctions in seasonally minded restaurants as well as lunch-loving counter-service spots.

One of the most widespread pumpkin menu items, though, can't be eaten with a fork. It's Starbucks' Pumpkin Spice Latte, a seasonal hot drink that's grown in popularity since being introduced in 2004. The latte stretches the start of fall to Aug. 31, though some loyalists hope it'll be offered year-round.

"I love pumpkin spice/ Do not even need a cup/ Connect the I.V.," professes one latte lover (of 530 people) on a haiku page Starbucks created to channel love for the drink. There's no news yet about full-time status, but that's not for lack of support, seen in droves on Facebook and Twitter, according to a Starbucks spokesperson.

Right now pumpkins are temporarily popping up across town in cupcakes, milkshakes, entrees and even beer. How do you know what's good? We assembled a crack team of pumpkin lovers to taste-test five items and give you the lowdown.

But first, a tasting note from Allen. What does pumpkin actually taste like, sans-sugar and spice? "[It has] a very earthy, sweet taste to it that can easily be changed up depending on how you were to use it." Nough said. Time to get tasting!

Seared scallops with pumpkin brandade

||| Victoria ||||| If all the gods came together for a feast, this would be the app on the menu.

||| Lenny ||||| I very much dislike scallops, but I didn't have trouble finding something I enjoyed about this appetizer. I found myself a little overwhelmed with the all the flavor this dish contains, but I left satisfied.

||| Rebecca ||||| A dish so gorgeous in texture and well-balanced in taste that I don't care what's in it. I'll be back to order this shareable, flavorful app that could pinch hit as an entree any day of the week.

||| Lisa ||||| Pshaw, pumpkin. You're outshined by the perfectly seared scallops and tasty Brussels sprouts. Yet somehow this dish wouldn't be the same without you.

||| Ernest ||||| The pumpkin brandade was a nice supporting act (more savory than I was expecting), but the scallop itself stole the show. Easily the best one I've ever had.

Pumpkin cinnamon-cream cheese cupcake
More, 1 E. Delaware Pl. 312-951-0001
$3.50: Topped with cinnamon-cream cheese frosting and pumpkin-seed brittle
Get it: Through November

Beautiful on the inside and outside. A moist cake topped with a delicate pumpkin-seed brittle. Take one bite and you'll see that pumpkin is definitely the guest of honor.

This cupcake has it going on. The cake tastes similar to pumpkin pie and, covered in the nutmeg-y cream cheese frosting, makes a delectable dynamic duo.

Delicious from top to bottom. Reminds me of carrot cake (in a good way). Can they make it pumpkin-shaped? Give me a dozen, leave me alone in my cube and we'll call it a day.

Sign me up for treat duty, because this tasty cake is officially on my list of Impressive Desserts to Present at Holiday Shindigs.

Ho. Ly. Mackerel. AMAZING. Frosting had amazing flavor, cupcake had good pumpkin taste, and the little piece of pumpkin-seed brittle was three different kinds of delicious.

Harvest Moon Pumpkin Ale
Various retail locations
$7.49 for six: On sale at Dominick's
Get it: Through December

This amber ale lacks pumpkin taste. I'm as disappointed as Charlie Brown and the Peanuts gang. The Great Pumpkin is a no-show.

I expected a mouthful of malty, microscopic jack-o'-lanterns massaging my taste buds, but I couldn't detect any pumpkin flavor. It's a decent amber ale but fails to embrace the holiday spirit.

Is this really pumpkin beer? So says the bottle, but this suds lover can't find any evidence of the gourd. I'll take a Guinness with a pumpkin drawn into the foam for my seasonal fix, thanks.

Sort of forgettable. Not spicy and not pumpkin-y but a good choice for casual drinkers who aren't pumpkin fiends yet want the theme.

I'm offended. This beer took the gourd's name in vain. If I were a pumpkin freak, I'd be disappointed at this brew's lack of flavor.

Caribbean pumpkin and goat cheese croquetas
Nacional 27, 325 W. Huron St. 312-664-2727
$5.95 for three: Served with orange aioli and topped with pepitas (pumpkin seeds)
Get it: Through December

Step aside, Dunkin' Donuts Munchkins; there's a new savory munchkin in town. Packed with pumpkin flavor, these little balls of yummy are a great start to a fall meal.

PUMPKIN. If you want a bazooka-explosion, round-house-kick, double-rainbow of no-nonsense pumpkin, this is for you. Eating one was delicious, but halfway through the second, I grew bored having already had my pumpkin fix for the evening.

It's a solid fall dish, but I wouldn't recommend having more than a couple of these filling treats if you're sticking around for dinner.

Ooh la la. A smooth, hearty dose of pumpkin gets packed in these tasty bites. Not too heavily fried, they're a sweet 'n' savory starter.

MMMMMMMMMMMM. Easily the most pumpkin flavor, and the goat cheese complemented without being overwhelming. I easily could eat 11 of them.

Caramel pumpkin shake
M Burger, 5 W. Ontario St. 312-428-3548
$2.99 for 16 ounces: This month's secret shake, made with house-made caramel
Get it: Through October

It's thick, creamy and sweet. A party of flavor, but where's the pumpkin? It's like all the ingredients got together to throw a milkshake party and invited pumpkin at the last minute.

Surprisingly short on pumpkin. The most prominent taste is that of nutmeg, which still made for an enjoyable shake but left me heartsick for my orange friend.

Color says pumpkin. Taste says eggnog. This is one thick, creamy shake. I'd go back for a different, more decisive flavor and would aspire to drink only half. Then I'd dive in and finish it off.

Yep, that's eggnog all right, though the initial smell of caramel certainly hints at fall. M Burger could keep this crave-worthy shake around through the holidays.

Good taste and overall thickness, but heavy on the nutmeg accents. Tasted like an eggnog shake more than anything pumpkin-related.

DR. ELIZABETH FRATERRIGO

Author of Playboy and the Making of the Good Life in Modern America and Loyola University Chicago history professor, Dr. Elizabeth Fraterrigo will explore the world created in the pages of a popular men's magazine and trace Playboy's development in the context of a society in transition as part of the Friends of Loyola University Libraries Speaker Series. Sexual mores, gender roles, family life, notion of consumption and national purpose-all were in flux as Americans adjusted to the prosperity that followed World War II. Initially, Playboy, promised on "entertainment for men," but its vision of abundance, pleasure, and individual freedom influenced generations of men and women, and decades of pop culture, from food to fashion and jazz to literature. The free program will be held on Wednesday, September 27, 6:00 p.m. in the Klarchek Information Commons, 4th Floor, Lake Shore Campus, Loyola University, 1032 West Sheridan Road, Chicago. For more information or to R.S.V.P. please contact Carol Franklin at cfranklin@luc.edu or 773-508-2641.

Omer, who are you?

Let's shed some light on the Bulls' Turkish import

By Ryan Smith FOR REDEYE

No, Luc Longley didn't jump into a time machine and return to the Bulls lineup. The tall, somewhat awkward-looking 7-footer who's starting for them in the preseason actually is 24-year-old Turkish center Omer Asik. Haven't heard of him? Well, RedEye is here to give you the 411 on the Bulls' emerging big man.

RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR. SOURCES: NBA.COM, ESPN.COM

Omer Asik
GETTY IMAGES
PHOTOS

NAME GAME

His first name is pronounced "O-mair." Also, avoid the temptation to pronounce his last name like the Asics brand of athletic shoe; it's actually "A-sheek."

NBA CAROUSEL

Asik was selected by Portland in the second round of the 2008 draft, but the Bulls acquired his rights in a complicated draft-night deal that also involved Denver and New York. Asik officially signed with the Bulls in July.

ONE GIANT MAN

Turkey boasts a formidable national team. In the 2010 FIBA World Championship, Asik and Co. reached the gold medal game before losing to the U.S. The Turkish team has a nickname: "12 Dev Adam" (translated as "12 Giant Men"). It's appropriate, considering there are three 7-footers on the roster.

ALL-STAR PEDIGREE

Before signing with the Bulls, Asik spent five seasons in the Turkish Basketball League; he twice was named an All-Star. Last season, he appeared in nine Turkish League games, averaging 10.8 points, 6.2 rebounds and 1.5 blocks per game while shooting 61.3 percent.

THE NEXT DIRK NOWITZKI? NOT EXACTLY

Asik's strength is on defense; he holds a Euroleague record for blocked shots in a game (19). Offensively, he doesn't do much more than dunk or shoot layups. So think of Asik as a poor man's Dwight Howard, though even that might be a stretch.

HIS ROLE ON THE BULLS

Asik is playing a bigger role with Carlos Boozer sidelined, but the big Turk still is considered somewhat raw and probably won't play heavy minutes in the regular season.

The Bulls should ____ in the time they have before the regular season starts.

... throw a party at Kyle Korver's recently purchased 16-room mansion ...

... wear protective gloves—no more hand injuries, please ...

... Play "NBA 2K11" as Jordan as much as possible. It'll raise their self-esteem to watch the Bulls be so dominant.

... think of a really creative team Halloween costume ...

... hire a housekeeper to pick up all their gym bags ...

THE BITE IS BACK

'The Fall' proves it's sexy for vampires to be truly evil again

By Gina McIntyre

LOS ANGELES TIMES

Long before vampires were posing naked on the cover of a recent issue of Rolling Stone, they were vile, terrifying creatures that looked like rats, lived in crypts and hardly ever turned up at the gym.

Fortunately for fans of the old-school literary villains, Guillermo del Toro and Chuck Hogan are determined to resurrect that archetype with a series of novels centered on the exploits of the Master, an imposing figure with long talons, no ears and a hinged jaw that conceals a shooting stinger to extract his victims' blood.

With "The Fall," a sequel to last year's "The Strain" (and the middle installment of a planned trilogy), the duo succeeds mightily, maintaining the kinetic energy of the first book and raising the stakes significantly. It wouldn't be right to reveal the story's explosive conclusion, but let's just say that when all's said and done, humanity might not be so comfortably positioned at the top of the food chain.

The story picks up where "The Strain" leaves off. The Master continues to amass his army of blindly loyal acolytes, the vampiric pandemic spreading like a virus through Manhattan and New York's outer boroughs. Dr. Ephraim Goodweather, an epidemiologist, and his ally, Abraham Setrakian, a European Jew who first encountered the undead during his time in a concentration camp, are holed up in Setrakian's pawnshop with their allies, trying to come up with a way to eradicate the vampires.

Though elements of the story are familiar, the sharp, propulsive language helps invest them with new power. At a time when brooding, sexy vampires are so ubiquitous in popular culture, Del Toro and Hogan have given the creatures back some of their nasty, vicious, delicious bite.

Sherlock

8 p.m. Sunday, PBS

I'm always leery of "modernizations" of classics I obsessed over as a nerdy kid. Yet I'm geeked for a yearly dose of "Sherlock" from "Masterpiece Mystery!" The first series plays out over the next three Sundays and is terrifically fun and quirky. Sherlock Holmes (Benedict Cumberbatch, above) solves mysteries in modern-day London with the help of his wits, smart phone apps and recently discharged Army doctor John Watson (Martin Freeman). This week's "A Study in Pink," based on Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's first Holmes adventure, "A Study in Scarlet," feels both familiar and refreshingly new. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

The Incredible Machine

Sugarland

Sugarland's new album shows how eclectic today's country music can be. From the U2-styled anthemic opening of "All We Are" to the faux reggae of the playful single "Stuck Like Glue," it quickly becomes clear that the country band has all sorts of new inspirations. The problem is they don't know how to harness it. The gorgeous ballads "Tonight" and "Shine the Light" will please fans of their hit "Stay," but the Katy Perry-ish pop weirdness of "Wide Open" careens out of control. Sometimes, a little focus goes a long way. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

Holy Rollers

Available now

Jesse Eisenberg plays a Hasidic Jew mixed up in a drug-smuggling ring in a film based on a true story. Sam (Eisenberg) is struggling in his development toward becoming a rabbi. When Yosef (Justin Bartha) gives him an opportunity to earn easy money, Sam unwittingly becomes a drug mule. "Holy Rollers" finds its strength in dazzling turns from Eisenberg and Bartha. But viewers never go too deep into any character's psyche thanks to the shallow plot. Special features include commentary, deleted scenes and interviews. GARRETT CONTI, THE PITTSBURGH TRIBUNE-REVIEW

Buenos Aires' Tremor fuses the indigenous sounds of the Andes with electronic grooves and rock-like riffs and attitude into a potent combination. Composer Leonardo Martinelli's background in creating musical scores for film and theater plays out in the group's theatrical presentation and ambitious musical scope. Tremor has a new record planned for the future, of which this video will give you a preview of coming attractions. The video was filmed in June in Brooklyn during a U.S. tour and is named after the type of flutes played in the song. POPMATTERS.COM

The Six Wives of Henry Lefay

Available now

It's hard to imagine how a film starring Tim Allen, Elisha Cuthbert, Andie MacDowell, Jenna Elfman and Paz Vega could go direct to video. It takes only a few minutes to understand why. This tale of a modern day Romeo (Allen), all of his ex-wives and his distraught daughter (Cuthbert) lacks even one original joke. The worst part is the film hinges on a plot gimmick that's so stupid, it will make your brain ache. RICK BENTLEY, THE FRESNO BEE

Bloody good time

A fresh batch of marys debut in time for Halloween

By Lisa Arnett

As Halloween approaches in all its gory glory, we have some bloody mary overachievers in our midst. Andersonville's Vincent and Lincoln Park's Small Bar dreamed up multiple marys that may take several brunch trips to try. Other bars and restaurants put all their eggs in one bloody basket, but not without plenty of thought going into spicy house-made mixes and elaborate garnishes.

Vincent

1475 W. Balmoral Ave. 773-334-7168

Chef Joncarl Lachman took the go-big-or-go-home approach with his brunch cocktail menu. Each drink ($12) is made with Ketel One vodka and a house-made mix, and most garnishes are hearty enough to be appetizers.

1. Vincent's Bloody Ear, a nod to artist Vincent Van Gogh, is garnished with a fried pig's ear and sharpened celery stick.
2. Not the most popular of the bunch but definitely unique, the Hollander gets garnished with herring, pearl onions and a homemade pickle.
3. Named for the Netherlands' Zeeland province, the Zeelander features tiger shrimp, roasted tomatoes and parsley.
4. Cheese lovers will dig the Cheesemonger, served with selections from the cheese cart and grilled bread.
5. The Chicago Matchbox is all about the veggies, with a skewer of pickled turnip, tomato, carrot, olive, cornichon and anything else that's in season.

Small Bar

1415 W. Fullerton Ave. 773-525-2727

Small Bar has earned a reputation for its extremely spicy marys, but owner Phil McFarland tells us the bar's retooled mix, made with worcestershire, sriracha chili sauce and wasabi, isn't crazy spicy. Expect this trio of unnamed marys (all $9) to roll out next weekend at the bar's Fullerton location and to make an appearance a few weeks after at the Division Street bar (2049 W. Division St.).

1. Small Bar's sole vodka-based bloody mary features Smirnoff vodka infused with jalapeno peppers and ginger, a unique combination of spiciness that blends well with the house-made mix.
2. For a sip of smokiness, try the Death's Door white whiskey bloody mary, which gets an extra layer of depth thanks to a dash of liquid smoke.
3. A twist on the bloody maria, a third bloody mary is spiked with New Holland's Hatter Royale Hopquila, a white whiskey steeped with hops and agave that has some tequila-like qualities.

DIFFICULTY RATING: ★★★★★

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeye.chicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

A 10x10 grid with numbers in circles at the start of rows and columns, and some cells shaded black. The numbers are as follows:

Row \ Column	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
1	24	14				12	9		29	27
2	12			34		4		14

THE 30 CLUB

"I'm freaking out," Kim Kardashian told MTV. Oh, no! Why, Kim? Over your recent nude W magazine cover? Because the tabs have you romantically linked to John Mayer this week? No and no. It's because she turned 30 on Thursday. "30 is the new 20, blah, blah, blah, I get it," the (aging) reality star said at her 30th birthday bash in Las Vegas last weekend. Always a jet-setter, Kardashian then spent part of her birthday week here in Chicago promoting a jewelry contest at Water Tower Place. "All jokes aside," she told MTV, "... I feel really accomplished." Are you sure about that, Kim? Here's a look at a few of your peers who also turned—or are turning—30 this year. ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

ELIN NORDEGREN

Birthday: Jan. 1, 1980

The world's most famous divorcee reportedly is getting a $110 million settlement from Tiger Woods, suggesting her biggest accomplishment to date has been hiring good lawyers.

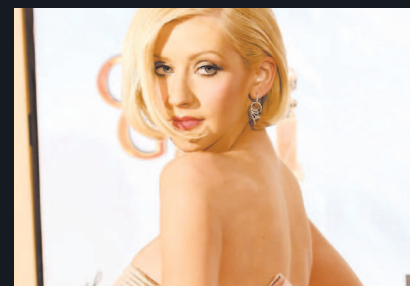

Success-o-meter: ● ● ● ● ●

CHRISTINA AGUILERA

Birthday: Dec. 18, 1980

Sure, "Bionic" was a flop and she recently got divorced. But "Burlesque," Xtina's upcoming movie with Cher, could get her back up to her teen pop star fame level.

Success-o-meter: ● ● ● ● ●

GUCCI MANE

Birthday: Feb. 2, 1980

Recorded with Usher, Swizz Beats, Wacka Flocka Flame? Cool. Served time for cocaine possession and once was arrested for murder? Um, less cool.

Success-o-meter: ● ● ● ● ●

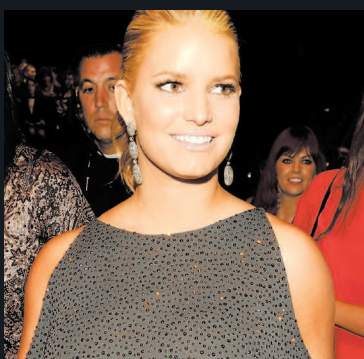

JESSICA SIMPSON

Birthday: July 10, 1980

Her vocal pipes are a little wobbly, and there's that whole overplayed-by-the-tabloids issue, but the woman can design a cute pair of shoes.

Summon the tooth fairy

Hilary Duff's wedding day this summer didn't quite go as planned. The hiccup: Her tooth fell out. "I bit into a bagel," Duff said on "The Ellen DeGeneres Show," which will air Monday. "I burst into tears. Then I started laughing at myself and then I really burst into tears," she said. Thankfully, her wedding planner's sister's husband's best friend was a dentist in Montecito.

Get outta jail lawsuit

Rapper T.I. is being sued by a concert promoter for not playing a "Welcome Back" jail-release party in May, according to The Hollywood Reporter. T.I. was under home confinement at the time and couldn't attend the show, but the promoter claims he wasn't told.

LYNCH IN LOVE

Jane Lynch didn't plan on getting married. But the "Glee" Emmy winner and Chicago native tells More magazine that things are great now that she and Lara Embry have tied the knot. "The minute we were married, I felt the difference: I felt I am no longer alone," she says in the magazine's November issue, adding that she has realized the two dreams mothers have for their daughters: "I got married—and I married a doctor!"

HOT DATE

Feb. 25 Lindsay Lohan's next court date, following Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Elden S. Fox's decision Friday to send the starlet back to rehab until Jan. 3 instead of jail. "You're staying past the New Year's—there's a reason for that," Fox said.

"I would never allow anyone to spend that much money on a cake. Making a million dollar birthday cake is just ridiculous! I'd rather they give me a cupcake and donate the rest of the money to the homeless!"
—Kim Kardashian blogged Thursday about the gem-encrusted 30th b-day cake a New York City bakery planned to give her Friday. The cake now will be offered to bakery customers.
